Teaching Mothers How To Mother

While most "do-it-yourself kits" come with detailed instructions, parenthood does not. And, although child rearing may depend in part on good intuition, it appears from research at the Institute for Development of Human Resources, University of Florida, that parental intuition can be given a substantial boost by well-timed training.

The study, sponsored in part by the National Institute of Mental Health, has found that young parents are more and more interested in books on basic child development. Dr. Ira Gordon, who directs the research, attributes this to various factors. One is the fact that more and more young people no longer live near their own parents, who, presumably, could tell them something about child care. Also, many young parents have never handled infants before having their own. Given such isolation and inexperience, they turn to the professional for guidance.

Visits to the homes of the families taking part in the program showed that, in general, mothers were taking care of the baby's physical needs, but usually did not talk to or play with the baby, and did not praise his or her accomplishments. In the project, mothers were taught how to catch and hold their babies' attention and to encourage the infants to talk and engage in physical activity. At the same time they learned to cuddle and comfort them when needed.

Gordon points out that the parent must realize that child care cannot be separated from child development. "This means," he said, "that while you are changing a diaper, for example, you have an opportunity to look at your child's face and smile. While you are feeding the child, you can talk. These are not simply physical care times; they are also learning times."

Mine are the same each year. Is he on to something I don't know about?

* * *

A. Not really. Your brother-in-law has a participating policy. This means that his premium changes from year to year, depending on how much was paid out or returned to him by his insurance company. As you might expect, participating policies cost more than nonparticipating policies (which you have) because in the long run they might cost less.

In your non-participating policy, the premium remains the same no matter how much or little the company makes from year to year.

What it boils down to is a choice for you: Do you want the assurance of a guaranteed premium or do you want to participate in the company's ups and downs?

CANCER Answer line

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A librarian writes: "I learned to do breast self-examination 10 years ago and now that I have gone through the menopause I am not sure of the proper time of the month to do it."

ANSWERline: Your physician will help you select a proper time of month for you to practice this important self examination, and may suggest other kinds of tests that will be useful as you grow older. Please remember to examine your breasts once a month. It is one of the best ways of finding possible breast cancer, a disease that becomes more common as women grow older.

An auto worker explains: "I suffer from ulcers, and my doctor told me to quit smoking. Why?"

ANSWERline: Cigarette smoking has an adverse effect on the healing of stomach ulcers. Also, death rates from peptic ulcers among cigarette smokers is nearly three times that of nonsmokers. Those are two very good reasons to quit smoking and you can do it. Helpful free literature and advice is available from your local American Cancer Society Unit. The ACS may be able to offer a smoking withdrawal program. Please take advantage of these offers because you have a real incentive now to give up a health-destroying habit.

A woman in her 20's writes: "Last month my aunt died of ovarian cancer. What can I do to protect myself against this disease?"

ANSWERline: There is no known way to prevent ovarian cancer which occurs most frequently in women between 40 and 65 years of age. It is a difficult disease to diagnose so it is wise to follow a sound general health rule for all women: have routine pelvic examinations on a schedule that your physician thinks best for you. Women who have a history of ovary-related problems such as infertility, a tendency towards spontaneous abortion, increased premenstrual tension or heavy menstruation with marked breast tenderness, and a family history of ovarian cancer, should certainly be under a physician's care.

A school custodian asks: "Is it possible to slow a cancer even if it's not possible to cure the person?"

ANSWERline: Yes. There are many ways of managing cancer treatment to extend life as long as possible. You should understand that some forms of cancer are more slow-growing than others and, even if a particular individual may not be saved it may be a period of many years between first diagnosis and death. Those intervening years can be healthy and productive. In fact, many cancer patients are alive five years after diagnosis--some 230,000 Americans in 1977.

Music News & Notes

REGGAE

Although one of the biggest beats around in popular music is Reggae (pronounced Reg-ay), a rhythmic music of Jamaica, there is a great deal that people still don't know about it.

Most Reggae musicians are members of the Jamaican Rastafarians, a religious cult. Some Rastafarians believe that the Ethiopian emperor Haile Selassie was a god. Reggae music is often used by these believers as a form of worship, but much of it is also sung and played by non-Rastafarians.

Some Reggae musicians have developed an offshoot of Reggae called "Soul Reggae," and some are into "dub" Reggae that entails creative engineering gimmickry to create a variety of special effects. There's sweet and sentimental Reggae, funky Reggae, rock-and-roll-like Reggae and some that seems to have a Latin beat.

To help non-Jamaicans get into the swing of things, Appleton Punch Rum, made by the oldest rum company in Jamaica, is making available a free folder on how to dance to Reggae music. For a free copy, write to Appleton Rum, Department PR, P.O. Box 7, Cooper Union Station, New York, N.Y. 10003. And start right in to dance to that Reggae beat.

Decorating Your Home

Hints On Having High Fashion At Low Cost

You can give your home a great feeling of traditional elegance with very little money or effort if you do something simple.

You may not have a 12-foot fireplace in the dining room, but you can create a similar effect by hanging a few ancient-looking andirons and other Early American fireplace accessories on the wall. Try a brass scoop, or a cast-iron pot on a hook, and set a huge stone jug on the floor nearby.

Up against the wall put an American primitive print if you haven't any portraits of your own ancestors.

Set out some straight-backed chairs with rattan seats and add a trestle table, keeping the bare wood brightly polished.

When you get down to it, the floor is what really carries the look. Now your floors can look as fashionably old-fashioned as the rest of the room but still be very easy to care for, because the warmth of wood is available in textured, resilient flooring.

A random width, pegged colonial plank flooring is cushioned for comfort underfoot and called "Williamsburg Plank." It's part of the Classicon collection from Mannington Mills. Available in 7- to 12-foot widths, it never needs waxing and contains a barrier coat called "Aquashar" which guards against damage due to moisture.

To top it off, add wooden (or wood-like) beams to walls and ceiling and set some rustic baskets and bowls of fruit and flowers around.

For a free booklet about "Decorating From the Floor Up," write Dept. L-8, Mannington Mills, Inc., Salem, N.J. 08079.

VA Questions And Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q - If a lender is unwilling to accept a veteran's application for a GI home loan, what should the veteran do?

A - Seek another lender. The fact that one lender is not interested in making a loan does not preclude the possibility that another may.

Q - I am a veteran with 50 per cent service-connected disability. In addition to the basic compensation, I receive money for my wife and child. My wife recently entered a nursing home. Can I receive additional compensation?

A - Public Law 94-433 provides for aid and attendance benefits for the spouses of veterans who are rated 50 per cent or more service-connected disabled. This increase may be granted if the spouse is a patient in a nursing home or if the spouse's condition requires the regular aid and attendance of another person even though not in a nursing home.

Q - Can a veteran have more than one change in his educational program?

A - Any change of an educational program beyond the first necessitate change could mandatory VA counseling.

Bull Run (First Manassas)

With the largest western armies ever to meet on a field of battle up to that time, Bull Run, in the summer of 1861 in the U.S. Civil War, was one of the world's memorable battles. Maneuvering began in June. The battle was fought July 21st.

On the southern side the commanding general, in the beginning, was a Louisianian, General Pierre Beauregard, who had been named superintendent at West Point by President Lincoln, who then rescinded the appointment. General J.E. Johnston of Virginia took command soon after the battle opened, but followed Beauregard's plan of action.

General Irvin McDowell of the Union Army was confident his well equipped force would rout the "rebels" and advanced boldly on Bull Run Creek and the town of Manassas, Virginia. He flung fifteen thousand good soldiers and much artillery against the Confederate left flank that day, and only the arrival of reinforcements, including the Stonewall Jackson brigade and Wade Hampton's legion, saved the day for the Confederates.

Average U.S. Home May Soon Cost $78,000

The average price of a typical American home could reach the almost incredible level of $78,000 within five years. This startling information was released in early March 1977 in a report by the Joint Center for Urban Studies of Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The price of housing in the past few years has jumped twice as fast as family incomes. Contributing to this rapid rise in the price have been inflation, government regulations, and periodic shortages of mortgage money — all of which has caused a sharp decline in housing starts since 1972.

YES WE CAN ...help you beat the high cost of building a new home.

For over three decades, Jim Walter has been building and financing homes that families of all walks of life can afford. NOTHING HAS CHANGED! If you own property, we can still custom build a home for you for far less than "average" prices being reported in newspapers, on television and radio. YES WE CAN! Let us show you!

We'll also show you that, by doing some or all of your own inside finishing work, you can save more. Here's how: Jim Walter will custom build your new home to almost any stage . . . from the "shell" up to 90% complete. We'll finish the outside in every detail. On the inside, you tell us where to stop . . . then take over and finish the rest. Do as much as you like . . . but the more inside work you do for yourself the more money you'll save.

Jim Walter offers INSTANT mortgage financing to qualified property owners . . . and you'll know exactly what your monthly mortgage payment will be before construction begins.

YES WE CAN! Even though new home prices continue to spiral upward, Jim Walter can help you beat the high cost of building. Let us show you how today!

Homes built on your property to any stage of completion from the shell to 90% finished.
